

BC Seniors' Guide

Ministry of Health

12th Edition

MESSAGE FROM THE MINISTER OF HEALTH

In B.C., we want to help our growing number of seniors live independently in their own homes for as long as possible, to promote a healthy active lifestyle, and provide the best possible care and support when and where people need it. Making sure information and resources about services are readily available for seniors, their families, and caregivers is important to help them make informed decisions about their health.

The BC Seniors' Guide is a comprehensive tool that can help British Columbians with the information they need as they age. It includes information on provincial and federal programs, with sections on benefits, health, lifestyle, housing, transportation, finances, safety and security and other important services. It is available in English, French, Punjabi, Chinese, Korean, Vietnamese and Farsi. The guide is accessible in book format or online. The BC Elders' Guide is a similar resource designed for Indigenous, First Nations and Métis older adults. It was created through a partnership between the B.C. Government and the First Nations Health Authority. You can find both the BC Seniors' Guide and the BC Elders' Guide online at www.gov.bc.ca/seniorsguide.

We are fortunate in British Columbia to have many incredible services available to help us as we age. The BC Seniors' Guide can help people discover these resources. It's important to have this tool as accessible as possible that is why we have had it translated into more languages than ever before. I encourage you to have a copy on hand, electronically or paper, and share it with as many people you can think would benefit from it.

Sincerely,

Adrian Dix
Minister of Health

The 12th edition of the British Columbia Seniors' Guide was printed in 2020.

Information may change from the time of publication. Visit www.gov.bc.ca/seniorsguide for periodic updates to this guide, as well as translated version available in Chinese, French, Punjabi, Vietnamese, Korean and Farsi.

Lifestyle

LIFESTYLE

Seniors Redefine the Concept of Aging

By 2028, about a quarter of the population will be over 65. Today's seniors enjoy increased life expectancy and generally better health than ever before. Most seniors live in their own homes and they have better access to information than any previous generation of seniors.

Staying active, eating well and having social connections contribute to living a healthy lifestyle. Only about 30 per cent of the way a person ages can be explained by biology and genetics; the lifestyle decisions a person makes every day affects how they age. The risk of chronic disease and disability can be reduced by staying physically active, eating a healthy diet, remaining socially engaged, quitting smoking and vaping, and avoiding risky and harmful drinking.

This section of the BC Seniors' Guide provides information on resources and tools to support healthy lifestyle choices for older British Columbians. These include the Healthy Eating for Seniors handbook – available in English, French, Chinese, and Punjabi – and resources to promote physical activity, prevent falls and plan for aging well in the future.

Taking advantage of lifelong learning and recreational opportunities contributes to a healthy, active lifestyle. This section of the guide provides information on post-secondary institutions that may offer reduced or free tuition for seniors; English Language Training for adult learners; and information about seniors' discounts on campsite fees and other recreational activities. Please visit www.SeniorsBC.ca for more information on healthy lifestyle choices.

SeniorsBC.ca

The SeniorsBC website provides information on programs and services for seniors offered by the B.C. and federal governments and non-profit organizations. The website includes information on health, finances, benefits, housing, transportation, tips for healthy living and other topics of importance to seniors. The website also includes online versions of this guide (the BC Seniors' Guide) in English, French, Chinese, Punjabi, Vietnamese, Korean and Farsi, as well as the BC Elders' Guide, which has been culturally adapted for Indigenous, First Nations and Métis older adults.

Healthy Eating for Seniors

The Healthy Eating for Seniors handbook includes recipes, menu plans, and information on good nutrition. The handbook is available in English and French and has also been culturally adapted and translated into Chinese and Punjabi.

The healthy eating for senior's community presentations are three engaging and interactive presentations that cover the key content from the handbook. The presentations are intended to support healthy eating for seniors in the community. A facilitator's guide has been developed to support the delivery of the presentations.

The handbook, community presentations, and facilitator's guide are available online or a free hardcopy can be ordered by calling HealthLink BC or through the online link to the order form.

An Active and Healthy Brain

Actively keeping the brain in good shape contributes to mental sharpness. There are many healthy behaviors that can be easily incorporated into daily routines that may reduce the risk of some forms of dementia. For example, not smoking, preventing or managing type 2 diabetes and high blood pressure (particularly in midlife), engaging in physical activity, and healthy eating all contribute to a healthier brain. See the Your Brain Matters website for five easy steps to help you promote brain health.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO QUIT SMOKING

Smoking cessation promotes healing, strength and contributes to good health. Long-time smokers get more short-term health gains from quitting smoking than younger smokers. Within days of quitting, breathing becomes easier, and taste and smell improve. Also, non-smokers recover more quickly from surgery and injuries related to a fall.

There is free help to quit smoking or using tobacco. Talk with your doctor, pharmacist or dentist to discuss the health benefits of stopping tobacco use. These two programs provide support to all British Columbians:

QuitNow

Free support for quitting smoking is available by telephone and computer. Talk to trained coaches, get some motivating messages by text, and connect with other quitters online.

Phone (toll-free): 1 877 455-2233

Website: www.quitnow.ca

BC Smoking Cessation Program

The PharmaCare BC Smoking Cessation Program provides smokers with no-cost nicotine replacement therapy (NRT), and for those on Fair PharmaCare, insurance for prescription drugs. NRTs include patch, gum, inhaler and lozenges. Get NRTs at your local pharmacy or speak to a doctor about prescriptions for quit smoking medications.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca

(enter “smoking cessation program” in Search)

Alcohol and Aging

Ageing tends to result in a loss of lean body mass, resulting in more body fat and less water in the body to dilute alcohol. Consequently, the same amount of alcohol will produce higher blood alcohol content in an older person, causing greater impairment than in a younger adult of the same weight.

Because older bodies process alcohol less effectively, drinking as one ages, puts an extra burden on the liver. For more information on liver health, visit the Canadian Liver Foundation website.

Website: www.liver.ca

(enter “alcohol consumption” in Search)

The amount that's safe to drink varies depending by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, weight, body fat and health status. For information on safe limits, see Canada's Low-Risk Alcohol Drinking Guidelines on the Canadian Centre on Substance Abuse’s website. Note that due to increased susceptibility for harm, low-risk alcohol drinking guidelines are lower for older adults than those recommended for younger healthy adults.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca
(enter “Low-Risk Drinking Guidelines” in Search)

When taking medications, check with your doctor or pharmacist to determine whether it is safe to drink.

Your doctor can address concerns about your own or a family or friend’s alcohol use or see Mental Health and Substance Use Services in the Your Health section of this guide for information on available services.

Cannabis

Cannabis for non-medical use became legal for adults in Canada on October 17, 2018. Prior to trying cannabis, talk to your health care provider. For more information about cannabis, including health effects and medical cannabis, call HealthLink BC’s 8-1-1 line, or visit their website.

Phone: 8-1-1
Website: www.healthlinkbc.ca (enter “Cannabis” in Search)

Visit the Government of BC’s Get Cannabis Clarity website for information about cannabis laws and regulations.

Fall Prevention

Falls are the leading cause of injury for seniors and are the main reason that older adults lose their independence. Most falls can be prevented, and there are many resources to help seniors remain strong and stay fall and injury free.

Regular physical activity which is focused on strength and balance is one of the best ways to prevent falls as you age. Activities like Tai Chi and resistance training are excellent ways to build strength and balance. To find out more about falls preventing physical activity, visit this web site:

Website: www.findingbalancebc.ca

The website below provides tips on falls prevention as well as an assessment tool, “Are You at Risk of Falling?”, brochures, and other information.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca/fallprevention

A primary care provider can provide more information on a falls risk assessment, medication review and other potential risk factors. Regional health authorities (see Health Authorities in British Columbia under Your Health in this guide for contact information) can provide information about fall prevention programs in your community. The BC Health Service Locator App assists people to locate a range of health services using an iPhone, iPad or iPod (see BC Health Service Locator App under Your Health in this guide for information about this free app).

B.C. Brain Injury Association

The Brain Injury Association of Canada facilitates post-trauma research, education and advocacy for Canadians affected by brain injury.

The British Columbia Brain Injury Association is dedicated to promoting better quality of life for those living with an acquired brain injury through education, information, prevention, support and advocacy.

DIGITAL LITERACY

According to the 2016 General Social Survey by Statistics Canada, Canadians at Work and Home, internet usage increased substantially from 2013 to 2016. For individuals 65 to 74 years old, internet use increased from 65 percent to 81 percent, while among those aged 75 years and older, internet usage increased from 35 percent to 50 percent, over the three-year period.

Below are some resources to assist in supporting your digital literacy:

Connecting with technology (Canadian Institute for the Blind)

This national initiative provides training in basic digital skills for individuals with sight loss. In-person or teleconference sessions introduce participants to assistive and adaptive technologies to increase knowledge, skills, critical thinking, and information management in the world of digital literacy.

Participants learn how to use apps, email, social media, search engines and other communication tools safely and effectively to participate in the digital economy and their communities.

Email: info@cnib.ca

Teach a Parent (ABC Life Literacy Canada)

In partnership with Youth Empowering Parents, this initiative engages and teaches youth to improve the digital literacy levels of their parents, other adults and seniors in their communities. Youth trainers develop their skills through online downloadable tutor guides and provide personalized instruction to adults on topics such as keyboard typing, Internet browsing, online safety and password protection, and accessing e-services. Available in many languages.

Email: info@abclifeliteracy.ca

Gluu Digital Coaching Network

This initiative delivers basic digital skills training to older adults across British Columbia. Gluu Technology Society recruits and supports a network of ‘digital peer coaches’ able to offer digital skills training and support to seniors in their community. Participants learn a variety of skills including: how to safely use public WIFI, securely browse the internet, manage online accounts, identify fraudulent emails, use video calling, understand social media, and access online government services. Available in English and French.

HEALTHY COMMUNITIES AND FAMILIES

Healthy communities have more places to play, to grow, to find fresh food and more ways to get around by walking, cycling or using public transportation. They support their residents in adopting healthier lifestyles by providing access to tobacco-free environments and social connections that foster positive mental health.

Age-friendly BC

In an age-friendly British Columbia, older people are supported to live active, socially engaged, independent lives. Through Age-friendly BC, the government of British Columbia is working with local governments and other partners to achieve a vision of a province where people of all ages and abilities feel included and valued in their communities.

Service BC

Service BC Centres or government agent offices assist seniors in getting access to provincial government programs and services. These offices are a point of contact for services and programs for people living outside the Lower Mainland. Staff members have knowledge of local programs and will refer seniors to other sources of information and assistance. Government services are available in person, online and over the telephone.

Visit the Service BC Contact Centre or your local Service BC Centre for information and services, including permits, fishing licenses, and the Medical Services Plan. For a listing of office locations, please refer to the Directory at the back of this guide.

To be transferred by phone free of charge to the office you wish to contact, call the Service BC Contact Centre at the numbers listed below.

Service BC Contact Centre

The Service BC Contact Centre (formerly Enquiry BC) provides the following services to all British Columbia residents, on behalf of provincial government ministries, Crown corporations and public agencies:

- Basic provincial government information;
- Assistance in identifying the program or person that the caller needs to speak to;
- Government program or government employee contact information;
- Assistance in identifying the level of government responsible for a program or service; and
- Toll-free transfers for callers who would otherwise incur a cost for obtaining information from or conducting business with the provincial government.

Hours of operation for Service BC are 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday to Friday.

Affordable Child Care Benefit

The Affordable Child Care Benefit replaced the Child Care Subsidy Program on September 1, 2018, helping more families with the cost of child care. Households earning up to $111,000 (or more with deductions) may be eligible for savings of up to $1,250 a month per child. Benefit amounts are determined by factors like family size, type of child care and income.

A parent, including a person with whom a child resides and who stands in place of a parent, can apply for the benefit online using My Family Services, as well as by mail or fax. Eligibility criteria include citizenship, residency, type of child care, income and reason for needing child care.

Visit the website or call the Child Care Service Centre from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday.

Your Health

YOUR HEALTH

Offering the Best in Both Patient Care and Health Services

Seniors living in British Columbia are part of a growing and vibrant sector of this province's population. More seniors choose to live here than in any other part of Canada. According to the 2016 census, 18.3 per cent of British Columbians are aged 65 or older, and that percentage is expected to increase dramatically in the coming years.

B.C.'s health care system encourages seniors to stay healthy and independent for as long as possible. The Province's accessible and affordable health services are designed to respond to the needs of all seniors. Government is committed to making it easier to find information about the programs and services you need. Knowing what's available is the first step to enjoying improved health services.

This section of the BC Seniors' Guide has information about the provincial health care system, assistance for travel within B.C. for medical reasons, health and wellness programs, and focused medical care. For information about managing disease or disability, assisted living resources, or planning for end of life, services listed here can help.

To learn more about useful health information, tools and resources, such as HealthLink BC's toll-free 8-1-1 health and health service information line, visit the Your Resources section of this guide.

Also refer to the section on Your Safety and Security in this guide to read about planning in advance of incapacity and how to appoint someone to make health and personal care decisions on your behalf. Representation agreements and advance care planning can help ensure that individuals receive care according to their wishes.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S HEALTH CARE SYSTEM

In British Columbia's regionalized health care system, responsibility for the direct delivery and management of most health services rests with the health authority in each region. The Ministry of Health has ultimate authority and responsibility for our publicly administered health care system. The ministry ensures that health authorities manage and deliver health services consistent with provincial legislation, regulation, policy, standards and other requirements set by the Minister of Health.

The Ministry of Health delivers several provincewide programs, including HealthLink BC, the Medical Services Plan, Travel Assistance Program and PharmaCare.

If you have difficulty finding or contacting local health services, call Service BC from Monday to Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. PST.

MEDICAL SERVICES PLAN (MSP) OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Medical Services Plan (MSP) of British Columbia insures medically required services provided to British Columbians by physicians, including laboratory services and diagnostic procedures. MSP contributes towards supplementary benefits for eligible beneficiaries.

All B.C. residents are required to enroll with MSP. As of January 1, 2020, MSP premiums were eliminated.

New residents or persons re-establishing residence in B.C. are eligible for coverage after completing a waiting period that consists of the remainder of the month residence in B.C. is established, plus two months. To allow time for applications to be processed, apply for MSP coverage immediately upon arrival in B.C., rather than at the end of the waiting period.

Medical Benefits

MSP pays for medically required services of physicians and surgeons, diagnostic X-rays, and approved laboratory services. In addition, MSP will cover dental and oral surgery when it is medically required, which must be performed in a hospital.

Supplementary Benefits

MSP contributes towards supplemental benefits for eligible beneficiaries. If an MSP beneficiary receives premium assistance, MSP pays $23 per visit for a combined annual limit of 10 visits per calendar year for the following services: acupuncture, chiropractic, massage therapy, naturopathy, physical therapy and non-surgical podiatry.

Surgical podiatry is a benefit for all beneficiaries. Routine eye examinations are a limited benefit for those 18 years of age and under, or 65 years of age and older. Eye examinations are a benefit for all beneficiaries when they are a medical necessity. All supplementary benefit providers, including optometrists, may charge supplemental fees to their patients provided the patient is advised in advance.

Who is Health Insurance BC?

Health Insurance BC manages the day-to-day operations of the Medical Services Plan (MSP) and PharmaCare on behalf of the Ministry of Health. It manages program information and claims, operates a contact centre, and looks after documents and information technology. Health Insurance BC can answer your questions about both programs.

For more information, visit the Health Insurance BC website or call the toll-free automated service 24 hours a day, 7 days a week from anywhere in North America. A customer service representative will be available to assist you between the hours of 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. PST, Monday to Friday.

BC Services Card

The BC Services Card has replaced the CareCard and Gold CareCard. The BC Services Card can be combined with a driver's license to act as photo ID. It is more convenient, more secure and will enable access to other government services both in-person and online.

Adults aged 19-74 are expected to periodically renew enrolment in MSP and get a photo BC Services Card by going to an ICBC driver licensing office.

Adults over 75 do not need to renew enrolment in MSP but should still get a photo BC Services Card at a driver licensing office. If a senior cannot make it to a driver licensing office, a BC Services Card without a photo can be obtained by contacting Health Insurance BC. A customer service representative is available Monday to Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Dental Care

Routine dental care and professional examinations can help prevent and detect chronic health conditions. Good oral health also allows for an increase in choice to eat a greater variety of foods, which can positively impact health and decrease the risk of malnutrition. Some medications can affect oral health, leading to conditions such as dry mouth. Good oral health can also help maintain an overall better quality of life by minimizing the risk of dental decay, tooth loss, gum disease, inflammation and oral cancer.

For more information, visit the BC Dental Association website.

TRAVEL TO MEDICAL APPOINTMENTS

Travel Assistance Program (TAP)

The Travel Assistance Program (TAP) offers travel discounts to eligible B.C. residents who must travel within the province for physician-referred non-emergency medical specialist services not available in their own community, and whose travel expenses are not covered by third-party insurance or other government programs. A physician’s referral is necessary, and the patient must have the physician’s office complete a TAP form. Contact TAP at the number below prior to travel for a confirmation number in order to receive a travel discount.

Phone (toll-free): 1 800 661-2668

TAP is a corporate partnership between the Ministry of Health and private transportation carriers who provide fare discounts to patients presenting an approved TAP confirmation form.

TAP does not provide direct financial assistance to patients for travel costs or make travel arrangements for patients. Meals, accommodation, mileage, fuel and local transportation expenses are not included in TAP and are the responsibility of the patient. There is no reimbursement after travel has taken place.

Once a completed TAP form has been obtained from your physician, call the TAP automated application service, which is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

PHARMACARE

PharmaCare helps with the cost of eligible prescription drugs, devices and medical supplies. A person is eligible for PharmaCare coverage if they are covered by B.C.'s Medical Services Plan (MSP). PharmaCare helps B.C. residents through various plans.

Fair PharmaCare Plan

Fair PharmaCare is PharmaCare's biggest plan. All B.C. residents are encouraged to register, and it requires a one-time registration.

Fair PharmaCare coverage is based on your net family income: the lower the income, the more financial assistance in paying for eligible drugs and supplies. (If you do not register, you still have coverage, but your deductible is set at $10,000 for each member of your family.)

Registering for Fair PharmaCare

Registration for Fair PharmaCare is free, and there are no premiums. Register by telephone, online or using a paper form. See the contact information below for the phone number and website address.

The following information is required to register for Fair PharmaCare:

All family members:

- Personal Health Number (found on your BC Services Card)
- Birth Date

For you and your spouse:

- Social Insurance Number
- Net income from Line 236 of your income tax return from two years ago
- Registered Disability Savings Plan (RDSP) income on Line 125 of your income tax return from two years ago. RDSP income is deducted from net income to calculate a person's level of Fair PharmaCare coverage

Upon registration, PharmaCare will mail a consent form to allow PharmaCare to check the registrant's income with the Canada Revenue Agency. Sign and return the consent form right away.

PharmaCare bases coverage on family net income from two years earlier (for example, coverage for 2020 is based on income information from 2018).

Increased Assistance

If the family's net income has decreased by 10 per cent or more, (for example through retirement), applicants may fill out an Application for Income Review to have their coverage adjusted (call Health Insurance BC (HIBC) for further information).

In the case where a spouse has moved to a long-term care home and applicants are having trouble paying for prescriptions, contact MSP to see about qualifying as "separated" (see "Directory" section under M for MSP contacts). Qualified applicants will not have their spouse's income included when their coverage is calculated. If MSP does not approve a request, contact HIBC.

In the case where a spouse dies, their income still factors into an applicant's level of drug coverage until the end of the year. If this causes financial difficulty, contact HIBC.

PharmaCare's Other Plans

Several additional PharmaCare plans may be accessed by qualified applicants including:

Plan G, for psychiatric medications. Eligibility requirements include financial and clinical need and applications must be submitted by a doctor.

- Plan P, for palliative medications and applications must be submitted by a doctor.
- Plan B, for patients living in residential care facilities. For residents of Plan B facility receive coverage automatically.
- Plan C, for medications for people receiving income assistance. The Ministry of Social Development and Poverty Reduction registers applicants.
- Plan W, for clients of the First Nations Health Authority (FNHA). Eligibility is determined by FNHA. Call the FNHA to determine registration status; contacts are below.

What's covered?

Visit the website below to find out what drugs, medical supplies and pharmacy services are covered by PharmaCare plans.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca (enter "Pharmacare" in Search)

Individuals taking a drug PharmaCare is considering covering may add their voice to the drug review process. PharmaCare welcomes input from caregivers and patient groups. For more information, visit:

Monthly Deductible Payment Option

British Columbians registered with Fair PharmaCare have a deductible based on their family net income. Families with the lowest incomes do not have a deductible and receive immediate coverage of eligible prescriptions and medical supplies/devices under the Fair PharmaCare Plan.

All other families have a deductible, based on their family net income. PharmaCare offers a monthly payment option so that deductible payments can be spread over the year.

It is recommended to not register for the Monthly Deductible Payment Program unless there is reasonable certainty that the eligible prescription costs for the year will be more than the deductible. Once enrolled in the monthly deductible payment option, families pay their Fair PharmaCare deductible in monthly instalments and receive PharmaCare assistance with eligible prescription costs right away.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca (enter “Fair Pharmacare” in Search)

Medical Services Plan (MSP) and PharmaCare: What’s the Difference?

MSP (see page 34) covers the cost of medically necessary insured doctor services, while PharmaCare covers the cost of eligible drugs, devices, and medical supplies. You must be registered with MSP to be eligible for PharmaCare.

As of January 1, 2020, British Columbians no longer pay MSP premiums. This change does not affect your MSP or PharmaCare coverage. You do not have to re-register for either program.

For More Information about PharmaCare Plans

Health Insurance BC administers PharmaCare and the Medical Services Plan (MSP) on behalf of the Ministry of Health.

Health Insurance BC can answer your questions about both these programs. Customer service representatives are available 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday to Friday, and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays (except statutory holidays).

BC EMERGENCY HEALTH SERVICES

BC Emergency Health Services (BCEHS) oversees the BC Ambulance Service and BC Patient Transfer Services to provide pre-hospital emergency services and inter-facility patient transfers throughout the province.

The BC Ambulance Service is one of the largest providers of emergency health care in Canada, serving an area of almost one million square kilometres. The service includes more than 4,000 emergency services personnel including medical call-takers, dispatchers and paramedics. BCEHS paramedics are dispatched to a call nearly every minute of every day.

The Province of British Columbia heavily subsidizes the cost of transporting a patient by ambulance. For B.C. residents with a valid BC Services Card who are covered by the BC Medical Services Plan (MSP) the fee is $80. This includes a BC Ambulance transport of a patient between a facility (care or residential home) and hospital.

When an ambulance is requested but transportation is not required, or it is refused, the fee is $50.

In a medical emergency:

- Call 9-1-1
- Areas where 9-1-1 is not available, call toll free 1800 461-9911
- Cellphone/SAT Phone from Outside BC 250 374-5937

In the case of a non-medical emergency, call 8-1-1 for confidential health information and advice available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

ACUTE, HOME AND COMMUNITY CARE SERVICES

B.C.'s health authorities provide a variety of acute care, community health, residential and special support services to assist people whose ability to function independently is affected by health-related problems. The type of assistance and support required varies from one person to another and may change over time for each individual.

Acute Care (Hospital Care)

Registrants of the Medical Services Plan, who have a valid BC Services Card, are insured for most services provided by acute care hospitals, as outlined below. This includes both inpatient care (when you are admitted to the hospital), and outpatient care (e.g., scheduled services where you go home the same day or services provided in the emergency department).

Patients admitted into an acute care hospital in B.C. for inpatient care, will automatically receive accommodation and meals at the standard level for the unit, necessary nursing services, and other goods and services that are medically required while you are a patient in the hospital. This includes any needed physician services, laboratory or diagnostic tests and X-rays, prescription medications, medical supplies, routine surgical supplies, and rehabilitation services provided in the hospital.

Patients may only be charged for goods and services used in the hospital when they are not medically required. For example, patients who request private or semi-private hospital room will be charged (some third-party health care plans cover this cost) unless that is the standard for the unit, or it has been determined by a physician that such a room is medically required. Patients may also be charged for certain non-standard medical devices, but only if they have provided consent to purchase these items in advance and a physician has not stated the items are medically necessary.

Items for use in the community, including private residences and long-term care homes, are generally the responsibility of the patient. Patients will not be charged if the item is a vital part of the treatment they received in the hospital and should not leave the hospital without it (e.g., certain neck braces).

Patients are responsible for paying for medical equipment to be used in the community, such as:

- Crutches, eyeglasses, and hearing aids
- Medical supplies
- Prosthetics that are not implanted in the body
- Home adaptations and medications that are to be used after you return home

Some of these items may be insured under Fair PharmaCare, depending on the circumstances.

Home and Community Care

Home and community care services provide a range of health care and supports for eligible British Columbians who have acute, chronic, palliative or rehabilitative health-care needs. These services include:

- Supporting clients to remain independent and in their own homes for as long as possible;
- Providing care within an assisted living residence or a long-term care home for clients who can no longer be supported in their own homes;
- Providing family or caregivers temporary relief/respite from the emotional and physical demands of caring for a friend or family member;
- Supporting clients to avoid, reduce or delay the need for hospital or long-term care services; and
- Supporting clients and their families who are nearing the end of their life with palliative care services at home, in an assisted living residence, or in a long-term care home, which includes hospice.

Who is Eligible?

To be eligible for publicly-subsidized home and community care services, such as community nursing or community rehabilitation (physiotherapy social worker or occupational therapy), clients must:

- be a Canadian citizen or have permanent resident status (landed immigrant or have a minister's permit approved by the federal minister responsible for immigration);
- be a resident of British Columbia for at least three months (some exceptions apply); and
- require care following discharge from a hospital, care at home rather than hospitalization, or end-of-life care for a life-limiting condition.

To be eligible for publicly-subsidized home and community care services, an individual must provide documentation that establishes that they:

- are a Canadian citizen or lawfully admitted to Canada for permanent residence; or
- Have applied for permanent resident status and as a result have been issued a Temporary Residence Permit (TRP) by the federal minister responsible for immigration (if issuance of the TRP has been recommended by the committee established by the minister responsible for the Medicare Protection Act to review the admissibility of individuals on medical grounds).

- An individual must be 19 years of age or older to be eligible for home and community care services, with the exceptions of care management, community nursing and community rehabilitation services, for which there is no age requirement.

An individual is eligible for publicly-subsidized home and community care services where the individual:

- has chronic health conditions that impair the individual's ability to function independently;
- has health conditions that require care following discharge from hospital or health conditions requiring care at home rather than hospitalization; or
- requires end-of-life care for a life-limiting condition.

Obtaining Services

For information about home and community care services, contact your local health authority's home care office (you can find health authority contact information at the beginning of this section of the guide). A relative, friend or professional (physician, nurse, pharmacist or social worker) may also contact the health authority on your behalf.

When the call is received, a staff member will ask some preliminary questions to determine the urgency of the situation and determine whether a health professional needs to make a home visit to complete a full care assessment.

Care Management and Care Co-ordination

To complete an assessment, a health professional (often referred to as a care manager) – such as a community nurse, physiotherapist, social worker or occupational therapist – will visit the client and gather information to help them assess the client's care needs and ability to manage their health conditions with the assistance of family and friends. The health professional may recommend home health, assisted living or long-term care services, and other resources available in the community, and may arrange a referral to specific programs. The health professional will stay in touch as needed to help the client with arrangements or to make adjustments if their care needs change.

Home Support

Home support services help clients remain in their own homes by providing personal assistance with activities of daily living such as mobilization, nutrition, lifts and transfers, bathing, cueing, grooming and toileting. They may include safety maintenance activities as a supplement to personal assistance when appropriate, as well as specific delegated nursing and rehabilitation tasks.

Choice in Supports for Independent Living

Choice in Supports for Independent Living (CSIL) is an alternative for eligible home support clients. CSIL was developed to give British Columbians with physical disabilities and high-intensity care needs more flexibility in arranging home support services. They receive funds to purchase their own services, and they manage, co-ordinate and are financially responsible for recruiting, hiring, training, scheduling and supervising home support workers.

Seniors and people with disabilities who are unable, or not always able, to direct their own care can obtain CSIL funding through a client support group or through a representative named by the adult in a Representation Agreement. The health professional coordinating the care can provide more information on how to establish a support group to manage CSIL services on the client's behalf.

Community Nursing and Community Rehabilitation

Community nursing and community rehabilitation services provide in-home nursing care and rehabilitation therapy as needed to assist adults with acute or chronic illnesses, to support hospital, long-term care and emergency department avoidance, to support patient recovery following a hospital stay, and to provide end-of-life care.

Adult Day Services

Adult day services provide supportive group programs and activities to assist seniors and adults with disabilities to remain independent in the community, and to provide caregivers with short periods of respite. Activities vary with each centre, but may include personal assistance, health care services (including nursing and/or rehabilitation services), an organized program of therapeutic social and recreational activities, and caregiver support and respite.

Caregiver Relief/Respite

A variety of services can be provided to offer caregivers temporary relief from the emotional and physical demands of caring for a friend or family member, or to provide the client with a period of supportive care to increase independence. This gives caregivers the opportunity to join in community activities or renew their energies, so they can continue to provide quality care.

Respite can include assistance in the home or adult day services, or a stay in a long-term care home on a short-term basis.

Assisted Living

Assisted living residences provide housing, hospitality services and assisted living services for adults who can live semi-independently but require assistance with daily activities – due to physical, health or mental health challenges or while in recovery for substance use.

Assisted living services may include support with activities of daily living (such as eating, meals and snacks, mobility, dressing, grooming, and bathing or personal hygiene), assistance with managing medication, therapeutic diets support, safekeeping of money and other person property, behavior management support, and psychosocial (or programming) supports. There is no limit on the number of services a residence can offer to its residents but at least one assisted living service must be provided.

Hospitality services include planning and providing meals and snacks, housekeeping services, laundry services, planning and providing social and recreational opportunities, and a 24-hour personal emergency response system.

There are three classes of assisted living residences: Seniors and persons with disabilities; mental health; and supportive recovery. Residences can be private and publicly-subsidized assisted living residences, ranging from high-rise apartment complexes to customized private homes.

A health professional or care manager can provide information on the residences in your area, the process for admission to an assisted living residence, what services are provided and applicable costs. For more information, visit:

Website: www.gov.bc.ca (enter “Assisted Living” in Search)

You may also wish to explore the online map of all assisted living residences at: <http://moh.apps.gov.bc.ca/alrc/>

Assisted Living Registrar

The assisted living registrar was established to promote and protect the health and safety of people living in assisted living residences. The Assisted Living Registry carries out the statutory work of the registrar under the Community Care and Assisted Living Act. All assisted living residences in B.C. must be registered with the Assisted Living Registry, regardless of the form of ownership or funding. Operators of registered assisted living residences must meet and maintain provincial assisted living health and safety standards. The registry investigates any complaints that it receives concerning assisted living health and safety standards not being met. A resident, family member or a member of the public may contact the registry with concerns about registered assisted living residences by phone or by email.

Long-term Care Homes

Long-term care services are provided to clients who need 24-hour professional nursing supervision and care and can no longer be supported in their own homes. For seniors and people with disabilities who have complex care needs, long-term care homes provide a protective and supportive care environment. B.C. has both private and publicly-subsidized long-term care home.

Clients with the highest need and urgency have priority for placement in publicly-subsidized long-term care homes. A health professional or care manager can provide information on the publicly-subsidized care homes in your area, the process for admission to a care home, information on services provided, and applicable costs. In addition, your regional health authority website provides information on publicly-subsidized long-term care homes in your area.

Both publicly-subsidized and private-pay long-term care homes in British Columbia must be licensed. More information about licensed long-term care homes, including recent inspection reports, can be found by searching in the online map of all long-term care homes.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca

(enter “long-term care home” in Search)

Group Homes

Adults with intellectual disabilities who require extensive daily living supports can live in their community in publicly funded group homes. Group homes provide safe homes for three to four residents, enabling them to integrate effectively in their local communities. They offer short- or long-term accommodation, providing eligible clients with care and support to maximize their independence, and to support their access and participation in areas such as household management, employment and social relationships.

Family Care Homes

Family care homes services are provided in a single-family residence that accommodates clients with specialized care needs that cannot be optimally met in a residential care facility. Services include meals, laundry and housekeeping services and supervision, along with any required assistance with daily living activities, such as bathing, grooming and dressing. Family care homes are unlicensed and can house no more than two clients.

End-of-Life Care

Compassionate end-of-life care aims to preserve clients' comfort, dignity and quality of life by relieving symptoms, so those facing death can devote their energy and time to embracing that which is most important to them. End-of-life care services, including palliative care, are provided to clients in their own homes and in home-like settings, in licensed residential care/long-term care facilities, and assisted living residences.

Hospices and Hospice Palliative Care

British Columbians who are in the end stages of a terminal illness or preparing for death, and who do not require acute hospital care, may prefer to spend their remaining time in a hospice. Hospices are home-like settings that provide hospice palliative care, including medical and nursing care, pain and symptom management, and psychosocial, spiritual and bereavement support. Some hospices may provide hospice palliative care services in the community to people who would rather receive this care at home.

BC Palliative Care Benefits

BC Palliative Care Benefits help people of all ages who are at the end stage of a life-threatening disease or illness to receive palliative care at home. British Columbians who are eligible can be registered through their doctors. The program covers prescription and some over-the-counter medications used in palliative care through PharmaCare Plan P. The local health authority will also assess the person's need for medical supplies and equipment. If medical supplies and equipment are needed, the cost will be covered by the local health authority.

For more information on what is covered under PharmCare Plan P, visit the "Who We Cover" page on the PharmaCare website.

MENTAL HEALTH AND SUBSTANCE USE SERVICES

The Ministry of Health provides a comprehensive and integrated system of mental health and substance use services delivered by the health authorities. These services focus on health promotion, prevention, harm reduction, treatment, rehabilitation and recovery, including supporting individuals and families with self-care and resiliency. Mental health and substance use services are targeted to different age groups, including seniors.

The treatment of seniors' mental health issues is often made more complex due to the presence of chronic pain or other physical health problems. Mental health services for seniors often focus on the need for collaborative practices that can include the family physician and/or home and community care services.

Seniors are as prone as the rest of society to suffer from the effects of mental illness and substance use. For example, issues surrounding depression, anxiety, and problematic substance use, such as alcohol.

Loneliness is an additional factor that impacts mental health and can contribute to declining health and earlier death for seniors. Loneliness may develop due to many psychosocial and health factors and can be successfully addressed through community programs supporting social connectedness, as well as specific assessment and treatment approaches through mental health and substance use services.

MEDICAL ASSISTANCE IN DYING (MAID)

Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD) occurs when an authorized doctor or nurse practitioner provides or administers medication that intentionally brings about a person's death, at that person's request. This procedure is only available to people who meet specific eligibility criteria. Not all doctors or nurse practitioners provide medical assistance in dying.

To ensure this service is provided in a safe manner, a system of safeguards has been designed to protect and support all people to make an informed decision.

People looking for information about MAiD should speak to their doctor or nurse practitioner or contact their local health authority's care co-ordination service regarding the options available within their region.

For people living in a First Nations community or care providers working in First Nations communities, please email the First Nations Health Authority (maid@fnha.ca) if you have any questions or require further assistance in coordination.

Housing

HOUSING

Housing Options for a Growing Seniors Population

From living independently in the family home to living in an assisted living residence, seniors in British Columbia have a wide range of housing options. Planning for the future housing needs of B.C. seniors is critical. By 2029, nearly 30 per cent of Canada's seniors will be between 75 and 84, and 13 per cent will be over age 85. Many of the growing number of older seniors will be able to remain independent, but others will require more support. The provincial government is working hard to meet the unique housing needs of British Columbia's diverse senior population by providing a wide variety of programs, services and housing alternatives.

This section provides information about programs and services for older British Columbians about subsidized assisted living for seniors who require some support, who own their own home, including homeowner grants for seniors, property assessment and property tax deferment. Whether individuals own or rent their home, they or their landlord may be eligible to receive assistance to make their home more accessible--an important consideration for many seniors who want to age in place.

Finding affordable housing is a major issue for many seniors living on fixed incomes. The British Columbia government provides rent subsidies to seniors living in private rental housing and subsidizes rents in affordable housing units built in partnership with non-profit housing providers and other levels of government. This section provides more information about these programs in this section.

SENIOR HOMEOWNERS

Home Owner Grant for Seniors

The home owner grant reduces the amount of property taxes a person pays each year on their principal residence. A senior aged 65 or older and meets certain requirements, may be eligible for the additional grant of $275 on top of the regular grant of $570. The total grant amount for seniors aged 65 or older is $845 in the Capital Regional District, Metro Vancouver Regional District and the Fraser Valley. For all other areas of the province the total grant amount for seniors aged 65 or older is $1045.

A homeowner must pay at least $100 in property taxes before claiming the home owner grant to help fund services such as road maintenance and police protection.

For information about the home owner grant including who qualifies and how to apply, visit:

Website: www.gov.bc.ca
(enter “home owner grant for seniors” in Search).

For any questions about the home owner grant, contact your municipality or the province if your property is in a rural area.

Email: ruraltax@gov.bc.ca

Low Income Grant Supplement for Seniors

The low-income grant supplement allows low-income seniors to supplement their home owner grant if it’s been reduced or eliminated because of the high assessed value of their principle residence. Applicants must apply for the home owner grant and the low-income grant supplement separately.

Most low-income seniors who qualify and apply for the supplement receive a cheque for $845 ($1045 in a northern and rural area). However, the amount of the supplement depends on an individual’s income and the assessed value of their home.

For information about the low-income grant supplement, including who qualifies and how to apply, visit:

Or contact Home Owner Grant Administration at the Ministry of Finance for questions about the low-income grant supplement, at:

Property Assessment

In January of each year, BC Assessment sends all property owners a Property Assessment Notice showing the fair market value of the property as of July 1 of the previous year. This market value is used, in part, by taxing authorities to calculate your property taxes. Individuals who have questions or concerns regarding the information on their assessment notice, may contact their local BC Assessment office by January 31 at the phone number or address written on the front of their assessment notice.

Website: www.bcassessment.ca

Property Tax Deferment

The tax deferment program is a low interest loan program that allows a home owner to defer paying all or part of their property taxes on their principal residence if they are 55 or older, a surviving spouse of any age, or a person with a disability.

If the application is approved, the Province pays the home owners municipal or provincial property taxes directly to the taxing authority on their behalf. The deferred taxes, with interest and an administration fee (if applicable), must be repaid to the Province, either:

- Before the property can be transferred to a new owner other than to a surviving spouse; or
- Upon the home owner's death, with repayment through their estate.

For more information on the property tax deferment program, including the eligibility criteria and how to apply, visit:

Website: www.gov.bc.ca

HOME ADAPTATIONS

Home Renovation Tax Credit for Seniors and Persons with Disabilities

The Home Renovation Tax Credit for Seniors and Persons with Disabilities is a refundable personal income tax credit to assist with the cost of permanent home modifications that improve accessibility or help a senior be more functional or mobile at home.

The maximum credit is $1,000 and is annually calculated as 10 per cent of eligible expenses. The credit can be claimed by seniors, whether they own their home or rent, and by individuals who share a home with a senior relative.

Seniors or family members living with a senior can claim the tax credit on their annual personal income tax return, for expenses incurred after April 2012. The credit is a refundable tax credit, which means if the credit is higher than the taxes owed, the person will receive the difference as a refund. For more information, contact the BC Income Taxation Branch, at the Ministry of Finance.

Affordable Housing for Seniors

Low-income seniors able to live independently without any support services, or with the assistance of home care, may apply to live in affordable housing developments.

There are three types of affordable housing developments in B.C.:

- Public housing – managed by BC Housing;
- Non-profit housing – managed by non-profit societies; and
- Co-op housing – managed by residents.

Many affordable housing developments are listed on the Housing Registry, a centralized listing and application service maintained by BC Housing. The Housing Registry includes public housing and some non-profit and co-op housing providers. Other non-profit and co-op housing providers maintain their own registries.

For full details about subsidized housing options available in B.C. and how to apply, please visit BC Housing’s website or contact BC Housing between the hours 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., on working days.

Seniors’ Supportive Housing

The Seniors’ Supportive Housing program provides housing and support services to older adults, seniors and people with disabilities. The program assists low-income British Columbians who are 55 years of age or older, and people of any age who have a disability or diminished ability.

To determine eligibility, applicants may be asked:

1. If they are becoming less independent in your current living situation?
2. If they could regain their independence if they were living in a modified home with services?
3. Could they respond appropriately in an emergency, including following instructions?

4. Could they still manage their own personal care, including eating, grooming and bathing?

For more information about the program and how to apply, please visit BC Housing's website or contact BC Housing between the hours 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., on working days.

Subsidized Assisted Living

The Independent Living BC (ILBC) program is a subsidized, assisted-living program that provides housing with support services to seniors and people with disabilities. This program's assisted living units provide a middle option between home care and long-term care home, so individuals can continue to live independently.

Applicants must speak with a health care worker at a health authority to receive a referral. The health care worker will review an applicant's needs, complete an assessment and put eligible applicants on a waiting list for a unit. For more information about the program, please visit BC Housing's website.

Getting Around

Transportation is Crucial to Help Seniors Stay Active

This section provides information about a variety of transportation programs and services available to seniors. There are discounts for transportation services like transit fares and passage on BC Ferries. The BC Bus Pass program is offered in over 60 B.C. communities and benefits more than 65,000 people each year.

In the case where an individual requires someone to drive for them, many local community organizations provide volunteer driving services, or can connect individuals with commercial driving services. Seniors can also access specialized services like HandyDART and the Taxi Saver program.

Seniors are eligible for reduced rates on automobile insurance. Information about driver's licenses for seniors and license plates for veterans can be found in this section. For road report and travel weather updates, the DriveBC website provides up-to-the-minute information about conditions, travel hazards and road closures.

With a record one-in-seven Canadians now aged 65 or older, there may be more seniors on the road now than ever before. Many seniors wonder how long they should continue to drive. This section provides driver medical fitness and an online toolkit to help senior drivers assess and improve their driving skills.

Senior Drivers' Toolkit

The Canadian Automobile Association (CAA) Senior Drivers' Toolkit is an online resource portal designed to help older drivers assess their own driving skills, learn about changing abilities, and if needed, modify and improve their driving. Developed by the CAA with a team of medical and health experts, this online resource aims to help older drivers and their loved ones:

- Promote greater self-assessment and informed decision-making;
- Increase awareness of the physical changes related to aging and potential risks they may create for older drivers themselves, their passengers and other road users;
- Provide realistic solutions, options and alternatives to driving; and
- Foster a greater understanding of the direct (and indirect) benefits that can result from making responsible choices and decisions regarding their mobility needs.

Driver's Medical Examination Reports and Enhanced Road Assessments

Through British Columbia's Driver Medical Fitness program, drivers are assessed to determine that they are physically, cognitively and medically fit to drive:

- When they apply for a British Columbia driver's license;
- At regular intervals if they hold a commercial class driver's license;
- When a reliable report is received from a medical professional, police officer, concerned family member or other individual (doctors, registered psychologists and optometrists have a reporting obligation under the Motor Vehicle Act); and
- At regular intervals beginning at age 80, as medical conditions affecting driving are more common as people age.

Drivers meeting any of the criteria listed above will receive a Driver's Medical Examination Report (DMER) form by mail. The form must be completed by a doctor or nurse practitioner according to the detailed instructions on the back and sent to RoadSafety BC for review. Individuals will be notified in writing of changes to the status of their driver's license or if more information or assessment is needed to determine their fitness to drive.

Note that the requirement to complete the DMER does not always require an Enhanced Road Assessment (ERA); only a small percentage of drivers who complete a DMER are required to complete an ERA.

Your Finances

FINANCES

Support for Seniors' Financial Needs

Seniors across Canada are living longer and are more active, more technology- literate and more financially secure than ever before. While many seniors fare well, others experience financial challenges and may need support.

Good financial planning can help maintain quality of life as one gets older. There are programs available to help low-income seniors supplement their income. These include the federal Old Age Security and Guaranteed Income Supplement programs, and the B.C. Senior's Supplement.

A senior may also be eligible for a variety of provincial and federal tax credits to reduce the amount of tax they pay. This section provides information about income security programs and tax credits.

The section on Your Safety and Security provides information about incapacity planning and how to appoint someone to make legal and financial decisions in case you're ever unable to make these decisions on your own, as well as consumer protection and investor education about scams and fraud.

FUNDING YOUR RETIREMENT

Old Age Security Pension

The Old Age Security (OAS) pension is a federally-funded base monthly pension paid to Canadian citizens and legal residents of Canada who have reached the age of 65 and meet the residency requirements.

Individuals who have lived or worked in another country that has a social security agreement with Canada, under this agreement you may be eligible for OAS benefits from Canada or from the other country.

OAS benefit rates are reviewed in January, April, July and October to reflect increases in the cost of living as measured by the Consumer Price Index. A person needs to apply at least six months before their 65th birthday or the date of their eligibility to receive OAS benefits if they did not receive a proactive enrolment letter. As of July 2013, a person can defer receiving an OAS pension for up to 60 months after the date they become eligible, in exchange for a higher monthly amount. For more information about the OAS and the various changes to the program, contact Service Canada, or visit their website.

Guaranteed Income Supplement

The Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) provides additional money, on top of the Old Age Security pension, to eligible low-income seniors living in Canada. Individuals must apply to receive the GIS, which is based on the annual income, or the combined income of a spouse or common-law partner that is reported in their annual income tax return.

GIS benefits are renewed automatically each year, if individuals remain eligible and file their annual income tax return on time. If a person does not file their income tax return on time, or if further information is needed, applicants will receive a renewal form in the mail. For more information about the GIS, contact Service Canada, or visit their website.

Allowance/Allowance for the Survivor

Seniors who are a spouse or common-law partner of someone receiving both Old Age Security and the Guaranteed Income Supplement, may qualify for a benefit called the Allowance. The Allowance provides extra money to eligible low-income individuals aged 60 to 64. The benefit amount is based on the combined incomes of an individual and their spouse or common-law partner.

In the case where the spouse or common-law partner of a low-income senior, aged 60 to 64 years old, dies (or has died), the survivor may receive a benefit called the Allowance for the Survivor until they reach age 65. Please consult the Service Canada website for all the eligibility criteria.

One must apply to receive the Allowance or the Allowance for the Survivor. The benefits will be renewed automatically each year, if individuals remain eligible and files their annual income tax return on time.

If you do not file your return on time, or if further information is needed, you will receive a renewal form in the mail. As your annual income may change from year to year, you must provide your income each year either by completing an application form or by filing your income tax return.

For more information about the Allowance or about the Allowance for the Survivor, contact Service Canada, or visit their website.

Canada Pension Plan

The Canada Pension Plan (CPP) provides a retirement pension and other benefits for those who have contributed to the plan through paid employment in Canada. The amount of CPP benefit is determined by the contributions you made during the time you were employed. The CPP is adjusted for inflation every January to keep up with increases in the cost of living. Individuals must apply to receive CPP benefits – retirement benefits do not begin automatically except for those who were in receipt of CPP disability benefits when they turned 65. Applications for CPP must be submitted at least six months before applicants want their CPP pension to begin.

If an individual applies for CPP retirement benefits to begin early (age 60-64), they will receive a reduced pension. If they apply after age 65 and as late as age 70, they will receive an increased pension. If they apply to have their pension begin at age 65, they will receive your full pension amount with no increase or reduction.

People who have lived or worked in another country that has a social security agreement with Canada, or if an individual is the surviving spouse or common-law partner of someone who has lived or worked in another country that has a social security agreement with Canada, they may be eligible for benefits from Canada or from the other country.

For individuals who have contributed to the CPP for the necessary number of years, the CPP also offers a one-time lump-sum death benefit to their estate upon death. Furthermore, an individual's spouse or common-law partner may be eligible to receive a monthly survivor pension. Dependent children up to the age of 25 may also be eligible for benefits (those between 18 and 25 must be attending school full-time).

Starting in 2019, the Canada Pension Plan (CPP) will be gradually enhanced. This means people will receive higher benefits in exchange for making higher contributions. The CPP enhancement will only affect individuals who are working and making contributions to the CPP as of 2019.

For more information about the CPP, contact Service Canada.

WORKING SENIORS

Employment Insurance Benefits

Seniors who wish to continue working after age 65 are eligible for the same Employment Insurance (EI) benefits as other workers in Canada. You must meet the qualifying and entitlement conditions.

Individuals may receive a pension income and EI benefits at the same time. If someone returns to work and accumulates enough insurable hours to meet the entitlement conditions to set up a claim, their pension income will not be deducted from their EI benefits. Application for Employment Insurance benefits can be made online at:

Website: www.canada.ca

Employed Seniors Receiving CPP Pensions and Benefits

Individuals who continue to work while receiving the Canada Pension Plan (CPP) retirement pension, and are under age 70, can continue to participate in the CPP. CPP contributions will go toward post-retirement benefits (PRB), which will increase an individual's retirement income. Individuals are eligible if they are:

- 60 to 70 years of age
- Working and contributing to the CPP
- Receiving a retirement pension from the CPP or the Quebec Pension Plan (QPP).
- To get this benefit, individuals and their employer must make CPP contributions. Individuals who are self-employed must pay both the employee and the employer portions of the CPP contributions.

CPP contributions are mandatory for working CPP retirement pension recipients under age 65. Starting at age 65, individuals can choose not to contribute to the CPP.

For more information on how to make this election, or on CPP contributions, refer to the income tax guide, call the Canada Revenue Agency, or visit the website below.

TAX CREDITS

The following information describes tax credits that may be available to individuals when they prepare and submit their annual income tax and benefit return.

Age Amount

In addition to the basic personal amount, individuals who turned 65 during the year (or are older), may be entitled to claim the age amount, which allows eligible seniors a non-refundable tax credit to reduce their income tax payable. The amount individuals can claim is based on their net income.

Pension Income Amount

Individuals receiving pension income, superannuation or annuity payments, may be able to claim the pension income amount. An individual's qualifying pension income amount will be used in determining the total non-refundable tax credits used to reduce their federal income tax.

Amounts Transferred from Spouse

Individuals may be able to transfer, to their spouse, benefit amounts that they qualify for, but do not need to use to reduce their federal income tax to zero. For example, a spouse may be able to transfer the age amount, pension income amount or the disability amount.

Pension Income Splitting

Individuals who meet the eligibility requirements may also want to explore the idea of splitting their eligible pension income with their spouse or common-law partner. Using income splitting, individuals may be able to transfer up to half of their pension income to their spouse or common-law partner for income tax purposes.

For more information about pension income splitting, please refer to your income tax guide, call the Canada Revenue Agency or visit canda.ca.

Phone (toll-free): 1 800 959-8281

Website: www.canada.ca

Other Amounts

Individuals may also be able to claim an amount for medical expenses and expenses for an attendant or full-time care in a nursing home.

For more information, please refer to your income tax guide, call the Canada Revenue Agency or visit their website.

Phone (toll-free): 1 800 959-8281

Disability Tax Credit

Individuals with a severe and prolonged impairment in physical or mental functions, may be eligible to claim the disability tax credit. To determine eligibility, complete Form T2201, Disability Tax Credit Certificate and have it certified by a qualified practitioner. Once complete, send the certified original form to your tax centre.

For more information, refer to your income tax guide, call the Canada Revenue Agency or visit canada.ca.

Phone (toll-free): 1 800 959-8281

Goods and services tax (GST) Credit

The GST credit is a tax-free quarterly payment that helps individuals and families with low and modest incomes to help offset all or part of the GST that they pay.

To receive GST credit payments, individuals must file their income tax return each year, even if they did not receive any income during the year. The Canada Revenue Agency uses the information from income tax and benefits returns to calculate credit payments and will advise those who are eligible to receive the credit.

If you have a spouse or common-law partner, only one of you can receive the credit. The credit will be paid to the person whose tax return is assessed first, and the amount will be the same regardless of who (in the couple) receives it.

For more information, refer to your income tax guide, call Canada Revenue Agency, or visit their website.

Phone (toll-free): 1 800 387-1193

Website: www.canada.ca

Sales Tax Credit

Persons are eligible to claim the sales tax credit for a tax year if they were a resident of B.C. on December 31 of the tax year and any of the following applied to them:

- Are 19 years of age or older;
- Have a spouse or common-law partner; or
- Are a parent.

Persons can claim up to $75 for themselves and $75 for your cohabiting spouse or common-law partner. If they are single, the credit is reduced by two per cent of their net income over $15,000. If they have a cohabiting spouse or common-law partner, the credit is reduced by two per cent of their family net income over $18,000.

Individuals can claim the sales tax credit when they file their T1 income tax return, by using the British Columbia Credits form (BC479). The credit is refundable to the extent it exceeds and individual’s income tax payable. Access the British Columbia Credits form on the following website:

Website: www.canada.ca
(enter “BC479” in search)

British Columbia climate action tax credit

The BC climate action tax credit is designed to help offset the costs of the provincial carbon tax for lower income British Columbia residents. The tax credit is combined with the quarterly federal GST/HST credit.

The maximum annual payment amount for the period July 2019 to June 2020 is $154.50 for yourself, $154.50 for your spouse or common-law partner, and $45.50 per child ($154.50 for the first child in a single parent family).

For single individuals with no children, the maximum credit is reduced by two per cent of their net income over $34,876. For families, the maximum credit is reduced by two per cent of their adjusted family net income over $40,689. The net income thresholds are indexed annually to provincial inflation.

POWER OF ATTORNEY

A power of attorney is a legal document that appoints another person(s), called an “attorney,” to deal with one’s business and property and to make financial and legal decisions on one’s behalf. It can be broad in scope or can be limited to specific matters. A “regular” (non-enduring) power of attorney ends if an individual becomes mentally incapable. If an individual wants the power of attorney to continue, even if they become mentally incapable of making financial decisions, they can choose to make an enduring power of attorney. For more information on planning in advance of incapacity, including enduring powers of attorney, please see the Your Safety and Security section of this guide. Safety and Security

SAFETY AND SECURITY

Protection and Support When You Need it

With a rapidly growing seniors' population, British Columbia is committed to providing the information and services necessary to support the safety and security of older adults in the province.

This section of the guide provides information about the growing problem of elder abuse and neglect. Concerns that someone is abusing or neglecting a senior, and it is an emergency, can be reported to the police (dial 9-1-1 or your local emergency number). If it is not an emergency, refer to the contact information in this section under the heading Preventing Elder Abuse and Neglect.

Also available in this section is information about the legal options and resources that are available to assist capable adults to make plans in the event of future incapacity. This includes information on how to appoint someone to make legal and financial, or health and personal care decisions in case one becomes unable to make these decisions on their own. An advance care plan includes discussing and writing down personal beliefs, values, and wishes for health care. This section provides resources, such as My Voice – Expressing My Wishes for Future Health Care Treatment, which will help individuals make their own advance care plan to help ensure that any care is given according to their wishes.

Scams and fraud are also of increasing concern for seniors. This section provides information on organizations that can help seniors protect themselves from unfair business practices and investment fraud. As well, there is information on help and services available for victims of crime, and information and resources to help seniors and their families get prepared and stay safe in the event of an emergency or natural disaster.

PREVENTING ELDER ABUSE AND NEGLECT

Abuse and neglect in later life can affect an adult's health, independence and safety. Older adults may experience different kinds of harm, such as physical, emotional, or financial abuse or neglect, by people they rely on or trust.

Shoving, hitting, threatening, taking money or property, failing to provide adequate care, and withholding medication or giving it improperly, are all examples of abuse and neglect. Many of these are criminal offences.

Abuse of older adults can occur at home, in the community or in institutional settings. Those who abuse are most often family members, such as a person's spouse or children, but they may also be friends and caregivers.

Call 9-1-1- with concerns that a senior is being abused, taken advantage of or neglected, and is in immediate danger. In cases where there is no imminent danger, or for information about elder abuse and neglect, contact the Seniors Abuse & Information Line (SAIL), or VictimLink BC. If the senior is unable to seek help on their own, concerns can be reported to the designated agencies in your health authority, to Providence Health Care, or, for individuals with a developmental disability, Community Living BC. If the mistreatment involves financial abuse or abuse by a substitute decision maker (e.g., under a power of attorney), the Public Guardian and Trustee of British Columbia may be able to assist. Contact information for these organizations can be found below or in the Directory at the back of this guide.

Many of the phone numbers listed below offer TTY and language interpretation services. Please see the Directory at the back of this guide for details.

Seniors First BC Society

Office of the Seniors Advocate

The Office of the Seniors Advocate was established in 2014 as an independent office of the provincial government. It was the first office of its kind in Canada.

The advocate is responsible for monitoring seniors' services, promoting awareness of seniors' issues and supports, and working collaboratively to identify solutions and make recommendations to government about system-wide issues facing seniors in key areas: health care, personal care, housing, transportation and income support. The advocate issues regular reports, conducts surveys and travels around the province gathering feedback from seniors, stakeholders and the public. The office is a go-to resource for seniors information and referral.

PLANNING IN ADVANCE OF INCAPACITY

Planning for the future is important, especially if something unexpected happens and one becomes incapable of making their health care, personal care or financial decisions. Careful planning can help individuals and their family feel more at ease and manage a difficult time. There are several legal options and resources available in British Columbia to assist capable adults to make plans in the event of future incapacity. Although there is no requirement to visit a lawyer or notary public to use the forms and documents listed below, it is recommended that individuals seek legal and medical advice before completing them. For information about personal planning options, see:

Enduring Power of Attorney

An enduring power of attorney may appoint another person to make financial and legal decisions on your behalf. One must be mentally capable when making an enduring power of attorney. Unlike a “regular” (non-enduring) power of attorney, which ends if one become mentally incapable, an enduring power of attorney continues in effect if one becomes incapable. An enduring power of attorney can be broad in scope, or very specific.

Representation Agreement

A representation agreement appoints a representative to make decisions for individuals who become incapable of doing so on their own. There are two types of representation agreement – section 7 and section 9 – with different scopes of authority and different capability requirements to make them. A representative may be authorized to make personal and health care decisions, and in some cases, decisions about the routine management of an individual’s financial affairs (section 7).

Advance Directive

An advance directive directly provides health-care provider(s) with instructions about the health care treatments an individual wants to accept or refuse, including life-support and life-prolonging medical interventions. Generally, unless an individual has a representative, health care providers must follow an advance directive and won't seek a consent decision from anyone when the instructions in an advanced directive address the care that is needed at the time.

IF YOU HAVE NOT PLANNED IN ADVANCE OF INCAPACITY

Temporary Substitute Decision Maker

In specific circumstances and according to B.C. law, a health care provider may appoint a Temporary Substitute Decision Maker (TSDM). A TSDM may be appointed if an individual becomes incapable and needs a health care decision to be made and they do not have a court appointed guardian (committee of person) or representative with authority to make health care decisions for them, and they do not have an advance directive that applies to the health care decision. The TSDM must make their decisions based on an individual's known instructions or wishes expressed while they were capable, or if their wishes are unknown, in their best interests. A TSDM may not give consent for an adult's admission to a long-term care home. My Voice – Expressing My Wishes for Future Health Care Treatment advance care planning guide is available on the SeniorsBC website and provides more information and a form for making a contact list as part of an advanced care plan.

Website: www.gov.bc.ca
(enter "Advance Care Planning" in Search)

Guardianship (Committee ship)

If an individual becomes mentally incapable and they have not made a valid incapacity plan or the plan fails, an application may be made, most often by a family member or friend, to the B.C. Supreme Court for the appointment of a guardian, also called a committee, to make decisions on their behalf. A guardian (committee) may be appointed to make decisions about health care and personal affairs, and/or financial and legal affairs.

On occasion, the Public Guardian and Trustee may be appointed as guardian (committee of estate) by the court and may also become the statutory property guardian (committee of estate), responsible for the financial and legal affairs of an incapable adult if a certificate of incapability is issued by a health authority designate. Find more information about this process on the Public Guardian and Trustee website.

Public Guardian and Trustee of British Columbia

The Public Guardian and Trustee (PGT) of British Columbia provide help when a person cannot make legal, financial or health decisions themselves. The PGT is appointed to safeguard and uphold the legal and financial interests of children, manage the legal, financial and personal care interests of adults needing assistance in decision making, and administer the estates of deceased and missing persons.

The PGT serves the interests of seniors who require assistance in making decisions in the following ways:

Responding to Reports of Abuse

The PGT collaborates with designated agencies (regional health authorities, Providence Health Care and Community Living BC) in responding to allegations of abuse, neglect and self-neglect of vulnerable adults.

When an allegation of financial abuse is made, the PGT may conduct an investigation where there is an immediate risk of harm to the adult's assets, there is reason to believe that the adult is not capable of managing his or her financial or legal affairs, and no other suitable person (family or friend) has the authority or is willing and able to act on the individual's behalf.

Specifically, the PGT may be able to assist by:

- Investigating actions of trustees, representatives or attorneys under enduring powers of attorney when the adult is incapable and concerns about financial management have been raised;
- Involving a designated agency if the adult is experiencing abuse or neglect, and is not able to get help on their own;
- Exercising protective measures, including temporarily restricting access to bank accounts or preventing property transfers;
- Consulting on complex situations of abuse, neglect or self-neglect; and
- Providing information on the options available.

Authorizing or Acting as a Temporary Substitute Decision Maker for Health Care Decisions

In situations where an adult is incapable of consenting or refusing consent to health care and has no legal representative, family or friend from the list in the legislation who is authorized and qualified to provide substitute consent as a Temporary Substitute Decision Maker (TSDM), the Public Guardian and Trustee (PGT) may authorize a TSDM to make a health care decision for the adult. If necessary, the PGT itself can act as the TSDM of last resort.

Website: www.trustee.bc.ca (click on Reports and Publications and see “Information for Temporary Substitute Decision Makers Authorized by the PGT” under Adult Guardianship)

See If You Have Not Planned in Advance of Incapacity earlier in this section of the guide for more information on Temporary Substitute Decision Makers.

Acting as Committee to make Substitute Financial Decisions

Where there is reason to believe an adult is incapable of managing his or her financial affairs, the adult has assets which require management, and no other suitable person is available to manage the adult’s affairs, the PGT may act as committee for the adult to make substitute decisions on behalf of the adult and to manage the adult’s affairs. See If You Have Not Planned in Advance of Incapacity in this section of the guide for more information on personal guardianship/committee ship.

In some cases, the court may also appoint the PGT to make health and personal care decisions for the adult if there is no other suitable person available to act.

Estate and Personal Trust Services

The Public Guardian and Trustee (PGT) can administer an estate when the executor, interstate successor, beneficiary or other eligible person is not able or willing to do so.

The PGT may also agree to be appointed executor in a will in appropriate circumstances.

When a person dies and leaves a will, the executor named in the will has the first right to handle funeral arrangements and administer the estate. If the executor is unwilling, or unable to act and there is no one else (an alternate executor or a beneficiary) willing and able to administer the estate, the PGT may provide this service. An adult may also choose to name the PGT as executor in his or her will. Adults who are planning to name the PGT as their executor should contact the PGT for consultation before preparing their will.

If a person in B.C. dies without a will, B.C. law specifies those who have the right to make funeral arrangements and administer the estate. The PGT may also be asked to provide this service if family members cannot be located or are not available to act. For more information, contact the PGT.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Consumer Protection BC

British Columbia has laws to protect consumers. Consumer Protection BC is the not-for-profit corporation, operating at an arm's length from government, which regulates the travel industry, motion pictures, debt collection industry, pay-day lenders, home-inspectors and segments of the telemarketing industry, as well as the cremation, interment and funeral services industry.

It focuses on educating British Columbian consumers and stakeholders to make sure consumer transactions respect the laws that govern them. When the consumer protection laws are violated, Consumer Protection BC can take enforcement action.

It is also responsible for the administration of the Travel Assurance Fund. This fund is a last resort, which provides a potential source of compensation for travel services paid for, but not received, when those services are obtained from a licensed B.C. travel agency.

Consumer Protection BC's website and toll-free telephone line provide consumers and business owners with information on their rights and responsibilities under B.C.'s laws.

If you, or a member of your family, have a complaint about a consumer transaction, Consumer Protection BC offers complaint resolution and referrals through a toll-free inquiry centre. For more information, contact them at:

Vehicle Sales Authority of British Columbia

The Vehicle Sales Authority (VSA) of British Columbia is a not-for-profit independent agency created by legislation to administer the Motor Dealer Act, prescribed sections of the Business Practices and Consumer Protection Act and related regulations under those acts.

The VSA licenses and regulates motor dealers and sales professionals. The VSA also provides mandatory certification courses and continuing education for all dealership staff who deal directly with retail vehicle buyers in British Columbia.

The VSA oversees consumer protection legislation for licensed motor dealers, including complaint resolution, consumer protection, industry standard setting and enforcement. The goal is a respected motor dealer industry servicing an informed and confident public.

There are many things that a consumer should know before buying a new or used vehicle, and the VSA provides the tools and information to help the consumer make an informed buying decision.

Investor Education Helps Seniors Avoid Scams – BC Securities Commission

Many investors have lost their life savings to risky or fraudulent investments because they did not understand the risks, ask the right questions, do independent research, or get a second opinion when looking to invest.

To help educate people on how to protect themselves from fraud, the BC Securities Commission (BCSC) has a suite of tools and resources on its investor education website InvestRight.org. Individuals can learn about the warning signs of fraud, how to spot investment scams, and how to conduct a background check on an investment advisor.

The BCSC can help answer questions about investment planning, unsuitable investments and scams. InvestRight.org is a one-stop resource for investors to educate themselves on how to make informed investment decisions.

Website: www.investright.org

Whether you are a senior, a family member, or a caregiver, you can act and protect people from investment fraud. Be vigilant and bring suspicious activity to the attention of securities regulators. Your care and attention may save a friend, family member or member of your community from falling victim to a scam artist.

To report a scam, contact the BCSC or submit a tip on their website.

EMERGENCY AND DISASTER PREPAREDNESS

An important part of provincial emergency preparedness is personal preparedness. Everyone has a responsibility to know what to do in an emergency to protect themselves and their loved ones. There are more than 50 identified hazards in B.C., including forest fires, earthquakes, tsunamis and floods. Being prepared can reduce the impact of extreme events such as these and can also help during less severe events like power outages or snowstorms.

There are many simple actions one can take to be prepared for an emergency. The federal government recommends being prepared for at least 72 hours however, some authorities, such as the Capital Regional District (covering Greater Victoria and the southern gulf islands), now recommend being prepared for a minimum of seven days. Filling out the Personal Record and Emergency Numbers page in the Key Contacts section at the beginning of this guide as a first step towards preparedness. Be sure to include:

- Family and friends – phone numbers and addresses, including an out-of-area (ideally an out-of-province) contact;
- Family physician – phone number and address;
- Any other medical contacts such as specialists, suppliers of specialty equipment, physiotherapists, nearest walk-in clinic, etc.;
- Non-emergency numbers and addresses for the nearest two hospitals;
- Your municipality and local emergency management contacts;
- BC Hydro, FortisBC and TELUS contact information;
- BC Drug and Poison Information Centre phone numbers;
- Pharmacy contact information;
- Veterinarian contact information (if applicable); and
- Insurance agent contact information.

Also important in preparing for any emergency is discussing and coordinating your needs with family and friends, as well as any people involved in your care (e.g., your family physician, home care providers or long-term care home providers). Discuss any specific medical needs with your family physician. To simple steps help you get prepared:

- Create an emergency contact list and talk to everyone on that list about how you would try to get a hold of them during an emergency or where you would try to meet them if you would have to leave your building;
- Pack an emergency kit for your home and a ‘grab-and-go’ kit with essentials you can easily take with you.

An emergency kit should contain the following items:

- Water: Four liters per person, per day, for a minimum of three days for hydration and sanitation
- Non-perishable food that you like to eat and that is appropriate for any dietary restrictions you may have
- First aid kit
- Copies of your most recent prescriptions
- A spare pair of glasses
- Flashlight and spare batteries, or a hand crank or wind-up flashlight
- AM/FM radio and spare batteries or a hand crank or wind-up radio
- Seasonal clothing, footwear and hygiene items
- Local maps with designated family meeting places indicated
- Cash in small bills
- Basic tools and a whistle to signal for help
- Copies of important documents such as birth certificates and financial/insurance information
- Pet preparedness items

A ‘grab-and-go’ kit should be a backpack or small rolling suitcase containing essentials in case you have to quickly evacuate. It should be kept either near the door, or in a vehicle. Considering adding the following items:

- Bottled water
- Non-perishable food items
- Essential medications
- Copies of prescriptions
- Copies of essential paperwork, such as driver’s license, insurance policies and birth certificate
- Cash in small bills
- Spare house and car keys
- Essentials for pets, if applicable
- Flashlight
- Sturdy shoes

Store the ‘grab-and-go’ kit close to a door, for example in the entrance closet, or in your vehicle. Regularly check and update the contents of the emergency and ‘grab-and- go’ kits and replace expired food and medications.

Have a plan in the event of an emergency. Know the evacuation routes out of your house or building and be sure you know who to call in the event of incidents.

The following programs provide information and resources to help individuals prepare for emergencies. For specific information regarding emergency programs in your area, contact your local emergency program through your municipal government. Many municipalities provide emergency preparedness brochures specific to your region and regularly conduct emergency preparedness sessions free of charge. It may even be possible to arrange for a designated preparedness session, for example if a whole strata complex is interested in attending.

Emergency Management BC

Emergency Management BC (EMBC) works to enhance public safety before, during, and after emergencies or disasters. EMBC provides information to British Columbians about hazards in B.C., general emergency preparedness, and hazard-specific emergency preparedness. They have many publications and resources that can help you get prepared for emergencies according to your needs.
