

HERE FOR THE JOURNEY

Spinal Cord Injury BC

MESSAGE TO OUR SUPPORTERS

Navigating the world with a spinal cord injury (SCI) is no small challenge: no one prepares for an SCI and the road ahead is filled with unknowns, complex systems of care and support, and barriers to access and inclusion. Making the journey alone can be overwhelming, which is why since 1957 SCI BC has been here to help people with SCI and physical disabilities and their families adjust, adapt, and thrive throughout their journeys.

Key elements in undertaking a journey are accurate, reliable, up to date, and timely information, and accessible infrastructure. Through our Information Services and Access BC programs, we continue to provide vital information, navigation, and counselling support, while working with tourism, government, and academic partners to advance accessibility, inclusion, and well-being throughout BC.

Having the confidence to undertake a journey and learning from the successes and challenges others have encountered along their journey are also key for taking on the what the journey has in store. Through our provincial peer programming we introduce people to new experiences and provide opportunities for peers to connect. Connection is at the heart of our peer programs: the experience and wisdom shared by our peer members, mentors, and coordinators provides the magic that unlocks the mysteries and opportunities each journey presents.

SCI BC is here for your journey but you are also here for ours, a seven-decade journey that has been shaped by the challenges and needs shared with us by you, our members and supporters. Our Peer Health Coaching and The Road Ahead programs, and our collaboration with G.F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre on the Rick Hansen Foundation-funded SCI Nav pilot service are recent examples of how what we hear from you is helping SCI BC to evolve.

As we enter our 70th year, we will be using the invaluable input from the 2026 Feedback February campaign to develop new programming as we continue to push forward. A lot has changed over the last 70 years, and a lot will continue to change in the years ahead, but we will always be here for your journey.

IMPACT 2025/2026 HIGHLIGHTS

We maintained...

...our commitment to employing people with SCI and related disabilities. Of the 34 SCI BC staff members and 12 volunteer peer mentors, 72% are people living with an SCI or other disability.

We hosted...

...8 feedback groups across BC during Feedback February to hear from our members on how to improve our peer support programming. Additionally, we partnered with McGill University to initiate a national peer support survey to evaluate the impact of peer support programming on the SCI community—188 SCI BC members shared their experiences with us.

We updated...

...our Marketplace website for a fresh new look and improved features to make buying, selling, and finding accessible equipment and housing easy.

We congratulated...

... SCI BC peer and Board Member Susan Bains on her successes, including winning the Surrey Women in Business Award, organizing BC's first Walk and Roll Accessibility Parade, being elected to White Rock City Council, and currently running for Mayor of White Rock!

We partnered...

...with ICORD (UBC), McGill, UofT, SFU, and UNBC on SCI research. In addition to our knowledge translation and participant recruitment activities, we co-authored 4 published research articles with another 12 being prepared for publication.

We provided...

...over 1,087 resources in the SCI Info Database for the SCI community.

We supported...

...3,423 members with SCI and related disabilities, as well as their families and friends.

We collaborated...

...with Vancouver Coastal Health (VCH), Rick Hansen Foundation, and VGH & UBC Hospital Foundation to launch VCH's Spinal Cord Injury Navigation (SCINav) service, a province-wide service that connects clinicians and people with SCI to expert support for SCI care.

We raised...

...nearly $95,000 through the 2026 Charity Challenge—we passed our fundraising goal and claimed the #2 spot for top fundraising charities! 154 members joined Team SCI BC, including 3 corporate teams, 3 run clubs, and peers from all across BC participated in our 7 regional Charity Challenge events.

We benefited...

...from 49 volunteers who contributed over 2,094 hours to support SCI BC programs, services, and events.

We awarded...

...the 2025 Susan Marshall Fighting Spirit Award to Marney Smithies, who exemplifies Susan's resilience, positive attitude, and concern for the well-being of others.

MEET BRIAN

For someone living with an SCI, moments like trying something new in the outdoors can feel out of reach and impossible at times. Let us share the story of a devoted father from Victoria.

Six years ago, Brian's life changed when he developed a rare condition that caused him to lose feeling in his legs. It took nearly a year of misdiagnosis and a visit to the emergency room before doctors finally found the problem. They discovered a small abnormality on Brian's spinal column that left him with ongoing mobility challenges.

Then, earlier this year, Brian received even more devastating news. Tests confirmed that he has ALS. It was a shocking blow to the single father who was already parenting the best he could with a disability. And now, as Brian's condition progresses, he relies more and more on a wheelchair to get around. But Brian is determined to make the most of the summer with his 11-year-old son, Mason, by his side.

Brian describes himself as a "research hound". He came across our programs while looking for resources on SCI. Brian contacted Scott, our friendly peer coordinator in Victoria, and soon attended his first peer event. "I met all sorts of amazing people who understand what I'm going through. It brought a real sense of community and relief."

For Brian, these experiences are even more important as his disability continues to progress. Peer support has become a "lifeline" for him and brings joy even during the most difficult times. Brian laughingly calls Scott his "ambassador of fun" for the way he gets everyone out doing activities they never thought possible. Above all, our peer events give Brian something he values deeply—time with his son. "Another memorable day is the fishing event at Elk Lake. It was wonderful to be in nature and enjoy some friendly competition... Incredibly Mason caught 17 fish that day and blew everyone else out of the water!"

Today, Brian is focused on making every moment count. He is creating lasting memories with his son. He is giving back by helping others with complex disabilities. And he is actively seeking participation in national clinical trials, with the hope of advancing science and, of course, perhaps a little more time.

A LASTING LEGACY

Leaving a gift in your will is one of the most significant and simple ways to create a lasting legacy that will support SCI BC in its mission to help people with physical disabilities and their families adjust, adapt, and thrive—not only today but in the future as well. This past year, we received $55,220 through bequests, gifts that will have an immediate and lasting impact. PEER HEALTH COACHING

Peer Health Coaching is for anyone living with an SCI or related disability who wants personalized support in working toward their own health and wellness goals. Our trained Peer Health Coaches are people with lived experience of SCI and understand real-life challenges. Peer coaching helped Bryan manage anxiety, lose weight, reduce bladder infections, and more. "Pre-coaching I was feeling useless, like a burden... [My coach] helped me more than anybody navigating through that crazy head space." Read Bryan's story and learn more at sci-bc.ca/coaching.

MEASURING WHAT MATTERS

A new tool is being used to measure the impact of SCI peer support.

At SCI BC, one of our core values is a belief in the magic of peer support. Every day, we hear from members who have found peers who truly understand their journey, gained confidence, or discovered new opportunities through SCI BC programs. Now, we have a new way to measure that impact.

Over five years, SCI BC partnered with researchers, led by Dr. Shane Sweet at McGill University, and community organizations across Canada to develop the SCI Peer Support Evaluation Tool (mcgill.ca/scipm). The tool measures 20 key outcomes of peer support identified as most important to people living with SCI.

In February 2026, Dr. Rob Shaw, SCI BC's National Peer Support Program Lead, played a key role in bringing back our annual Feedback February. Members were invited to share their experiences through focus groups and a survey, which included the new evaluation tool.

With responses from 188 members, the survey confirmed what our community has been telling us for years: peer support makes a difference.

Of the 20 outcomes measured, reduced isolation, quality of life, and feeling understood received the highest ratings. An incredible 92% of respondents reported feeling "less alone" or "a lot less alone" after participating in SCI BC's Peer Program. 77% said their quality of life was "somewhat better" or "better". Peer support also helped people build stronger community connections, with 53% reporting increased engagement in community programs and events.

The survey also showed where there's room to grow. Health skills, rehab transition skills, and self-care skills received the lowest ratings, pointing us towards areas where additional programs and support could make a difference.

For SCI BC, this is about more than collecting data. It's about measuring what matters most to our community, not simply what's easiest to count. By tracking these outcomes, we can improve our programs and combine our data with other SCI organizations to strengthen the case for peer support across Canada. This evidence also helps us advocate for sustainable funding and show government, funders, and donors that peer support is a vital resource for people living with SCI.

SCI BC will continue using the SCI Peer Support Evaluation Tool in our annual feedback survey. Because when our members tell us what matters, we want to listen, learn, and act.

A WORD FROM OUR PEERS

“I have been a member of SCI BC, and I can sincerely say that it has been one of the most trustworthy and compassionate organizations I have ever known. SCI BC has consistently treated me and every member I have met with dignity, respect, inclusion, and genuine care, without judgment or discrimination.”

“This is an awesome start... giving us some direction to where we place our next questions/research! Thank you so much for your thorough response!”

“The Sunset Cruise was the best day I’ve had in a very long time and gave me enough of a happiness fill up that I can now wait for spring. The sun was out. The food was good and the company was wonderful. This was an absolutely top-notch event and I loved every minute of it.”

“There are few opportunities to simply connect with a group of women who fundamentally understand the joys and challenges of living with an SCI. It was a lovely afternoon with delicious food, excellent company, and an opportunity to build and strengthen relationships in an organic way.”

CELEBRATING OUR COMMUNITY

We could not do what we do at SCI BC without the commitment of our incredible donors. Donor support drives our success—it helps us elevate our peer events and programs. To show our gratitude, we'd like to celebrate some of our longstanding donors, who helped make our accomplishments possible.

Gerry Stafford had no idea when he shared a link to his online Charity Challenge fundraising page on LinkedIn that it would result in so much support from his family, friends, and network. After his injury in the spring, he joined Team SCI BC in June at the 2026 Charity Challenge, SCI BC's biggest fundraising event. He raised over $11,000—an incredible achievement from one individual that played a huge role in helping SCI BC raise nearly $95,000 for our programs and services. Gerry's involvement in SCI BC's Charity Challenge is a testament that even what feels like the simplest ask—like a post on social media or LinkedIn—can help make a big difference.

Murray McNab had been a supporter of SCI BC through his farm, McNab's Corn Maze, for several years when he received the news that we unfortunately had to cancel our fundraising raffle for World Cup tickets, due to FIFA's copyright infringement and ticketing policies. In the face of such disappointment and frustration, Murray reached out with the desire to support; proving that there is a light at the end of every tunnel, he donated $5,000—the amount that we expected to raise through our raffle. With this generous gift from Murray and the rest of the community that came together to show us support, SCI BC received over $15,000 in donations... a beautiful display of compassion and generosity that came out of a challenging situation.

Sandy & Bruce Hawkshaw (SCI BC monthly donors since 2018)

"Giving monthly is a great way for us to give back to an organization that gives so much to us. Monthly gifts, whether they are $5, $10, or $20 a month, add up over time and end up making a huge difference. They help SCI BC have a steady source of funding all year so they can continue running the programs and services that mean so much to us and other peers across BC."

Jody Hallett (Director of Operations at Whiski Jack Resorts Whistler, SCI BC Online Auction Donor)

"We are happy to help SCI BC raise funds to help families in need accomplish their goals... whatever we can do to help. SCI BC means world to my family personally."
